Privacy Policy

This Website is owned and maintained by Avalor Investment AG, Löwenstrasse 3, 8001 Zurich, Switzerland. The Website provides information relating to the services of Avalor for prospective and current clients. In the course of your use of the Website, Avalor may obtain personal information about you. This policy describes the types of personal information that may be collected about you in connection with your use of the Website:

- “Cookies” are small text files that may be placed on your Web browser when you visit the Website or when you view advertisements placed on other Websites by Avalor. The information derived from cookies is used for administrative purposes to help Avalor gauge the effectiveness of its advertising efforts and to improve your experience with the Website. For example, this information may help to authenticate you (i.e., verify that you are who you say you are). Cookies also make it easier for you to navigate the Website by, among other things, “remembering” your identity so that you do not have to input your password multiple times as you move between pages or services. Cookies also may be used to serve you with advertisements when you visit Websites of third parties with whom Avalor may have marketing relationships. You can set your Web browser to inform you when cookies are set, or to prevent cookies from being set. However, if you decline to use cookies, you may experience reduced functionality. The Website uses cookies that last indefinitely. If you do not wish to have a cookie stored in your computer, you should disable them in your browser’s security options.
- “Clickstream” data (e.g., information regarding which of our Web pages you access, the frequency of such access, and your product and service preferences) may be collected by Avalor itself, or by its service providers, using cookies, Web beacons, page tags, or similar tools that are set when you visit the Website or when you view an advertisement that Avalor has placed on another Website. Clickstream data and similar information may be shared internally within Avalor and used: for administrative purposes; to assess the usage, value and performance of online products and services; to improve your experience with the Website; and as otherwise permitted by applicable law or regulation. This information may be processed by Avalor or the purposes described above, or by third parties on behalf of Avalor.
- When you visit the Website, your browser may be momentarily directed to the Website of an ad server or other third party service provider. This re-direction process will not be apparent to you. These third party Websites automatically receive your IP address when this happens, and they may also collect information from your interaction with the Website including computer and connection information, standard Web log information, and ad information. Such information generally does not identify you individually.
- Avalor may make available on its Website third party applications such as content linking or sharing facilities. Information collected by providers of such applications is governed by their privacy policies. Following links to any other off-site pages or other Web sites is at the user’s own risk.

This Policy provides a general statement of the ways in which Avalor gathers information from the use of its Website. In connection with specific products or services offered by Avalor, you may be provided with separate privacy policies or statements. Avalor reserves the right to change this Policy from time to time without notice. The revised Policy will be effective immediately upon posting to the Website. This version of the Policy is effective as of July 2016. If you require further information regarding this Privacy Policy please contact us.
